ICOMS 2025

WHY IT MATTERS

ICOMS 2025 is a three-and-a-half-day gathering of the whole oral and maxillofacial surgical community. It was created for surgeons by surgeons – to disseminate important advances and techniques, share knowledge and resources, and enjoy camaraderie.

ICOMS 2025 has much to offer attendees at all career stages. Awards celebrate and recognize. Symposia inspire. Oral presentations and poster sessions elevate. Plenaries inform. Diverse perspectives energize. Master Classes and professional-development sessions prepare.

The reverse is true as well: Attendees at all career stages have much to offer ICOMS 2025. Experienced surgeons mentor the next crop of surgeons and also savor the company of longtime colleagues.

This essential meeting, being held in the heart of a world-class destination, Singapore, advances the OMFS specialty by supporting surgeons, elevating awareness of industry suppliers and innovations, facilitating valuable connections, and advancing the profession overall.

CREATE YOUR DRAFT EARLY

The abstract online submission services allow you to create a draft of your abstract and review it as many times as you wish before submitting.

Start your draft in advance and do not wait until the deadline to create your abstract submission form. Avoid the stress from last-minute technical problems that may still occur or unexpected events.

NOTE: ABSTRACTS THAT ARE IN DRAFT STATUS AFTER THE SUBMISSION DEADLINE CANNOT BE PROCESSED AND THEREFORE WILL NOT BE CONSIDERED FOR SELECTION.

ABOUT CONTENT & FORMAT

An abstract is a succinct summary of the entire paper. The content should be clear and logical.

THE DIFFERENT ABSTRACT SECTIONS

TITLE

The title needs to be dynamic and conclusive (it sells your submission). Be specific and short! The title should be brief, interesting, and describe the scope, content, and focus of what you want to present.

BACKGROUND/ INTRODUCTION

·Indicate why the question-topic is important, particularly in the context of oral and maxillofacial surgery (e.g., addressing a significant clinical challenge or knowledge gap).

PURPOSE

Why was your project undertaken? This should be an “aims of this study” statement.

METHODS

Succinct description of what was done. ·What measurements were taken and how were the data managed? Ensure you specify pertinent tools and techniques, such as surgical methods, imaging techniques, or specific patient demographics.

RESULTS

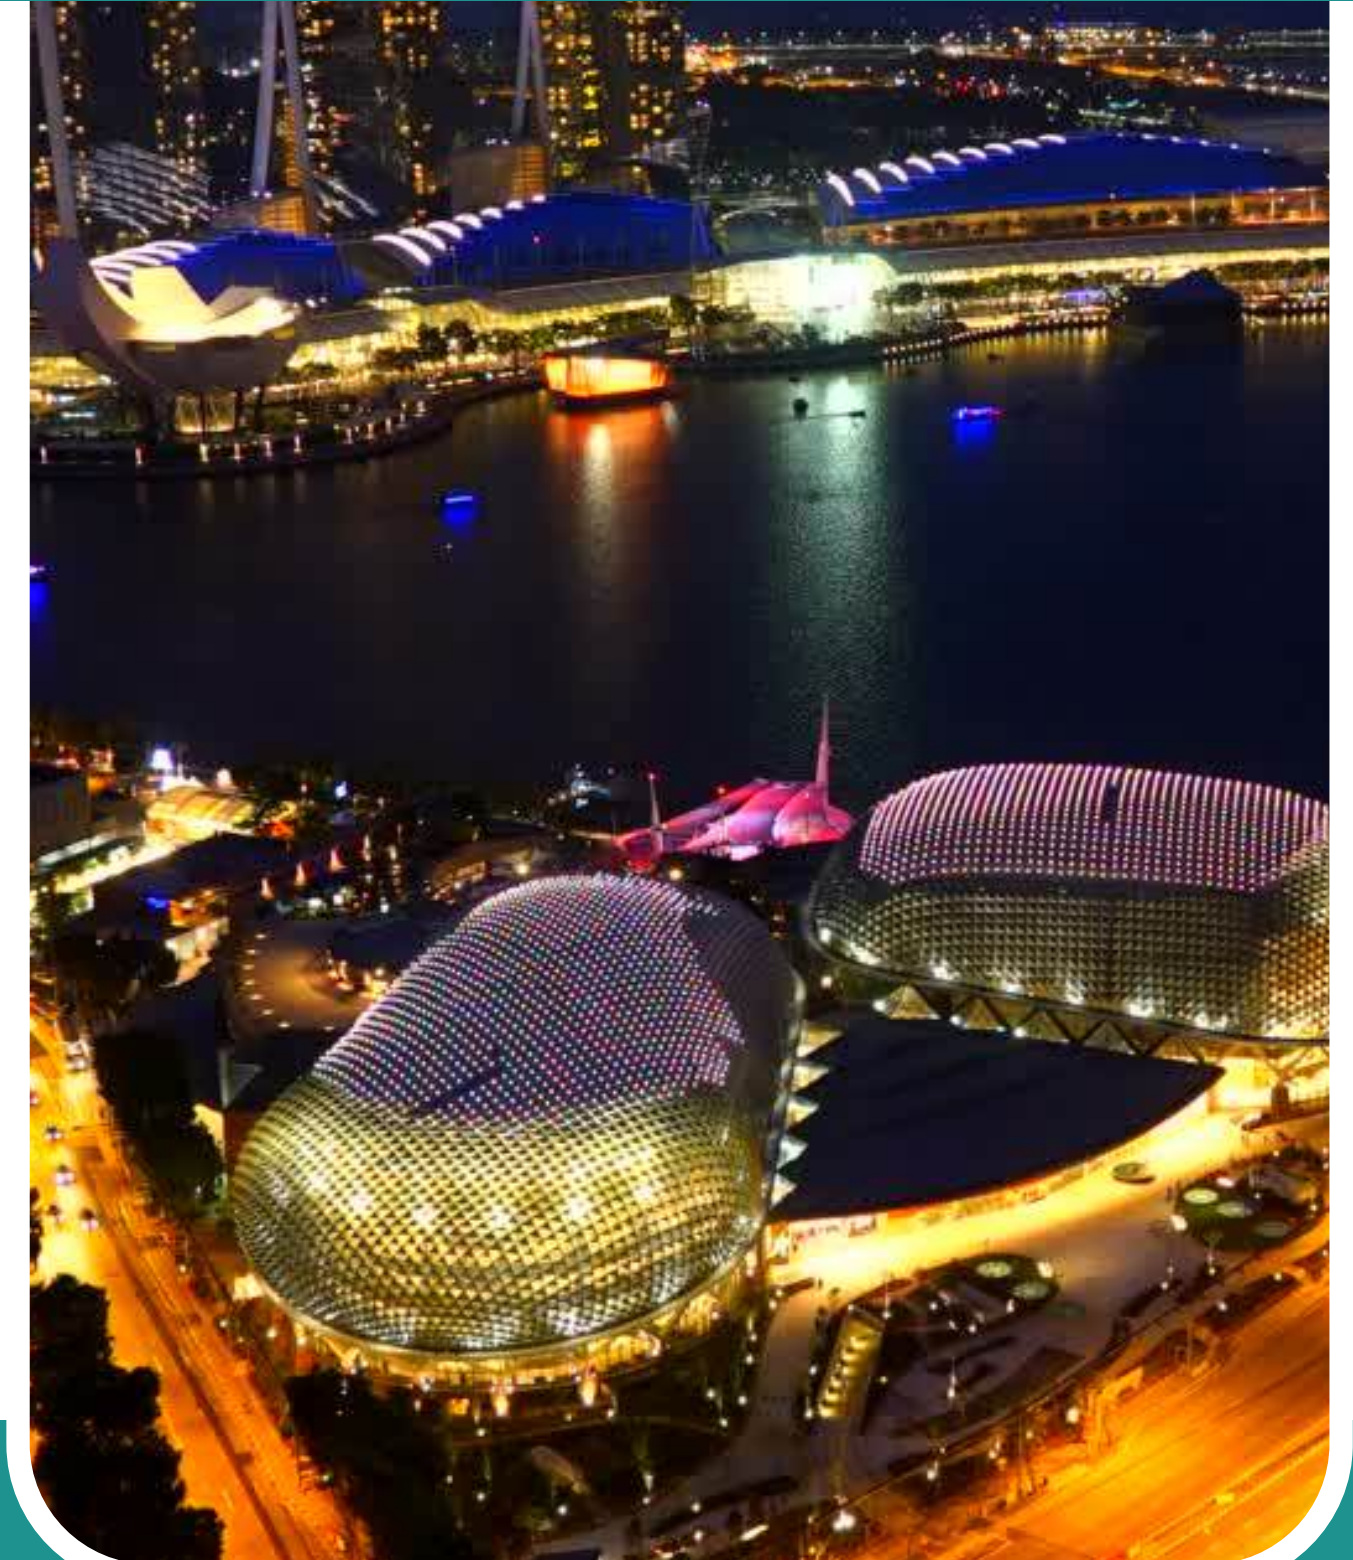

What did you find/discover? Be succinct yet give the reader a summary analysis Present key results which should be self-explanatory

CONCLUSION(S)

Keep your conclusions reasonable and ensure they can be confirmed by the findings of your study. What are the suggestions for future work? Emphasize the impact on clinical practices or future research in oral and maxillofacial surgery.

A FEW TIPS

- The presenting author should be named first and should be able to defend the abstract in a lively discussion.
- Promote the originality and clinical significance of your project.
- The abstract is a first impression, so make it appealing.
- Avoid illegible titles, substandard and unstructured abstracts (no single number or data point given).

READY TO SUBMIT? ANSWER THESE QUESTIONS.

Carefully proofread your final copy before submitting and make sure you really are ready by answering the following questions:

- Are all of your co-authors in agreement with the content?
- Did you carefully follow instructions and guidelines?
- Will the title capture the interest of a potential congress delegate?
- Does the title describe the subject being written about?
- Is the abstract well written in terms of language, grammar, and spelling?
- Does the abstract convey what the presentation is about?
- Does the abstract clearly state the subject of your project and the question it aimed to answer?
- Does the abstract say how the project was carried out?
- Does the abstract indicate the value of the findings and to whom they will be of use?
- Does the abstract give a concise summary of the findings?

READY?

WHAT YOU SHOULD AVOID

Be sure to give careful consideration to these pitfalls that will be detrimental to your abstract submission.

Poorly described methods.

Results without numbers.

Spelling and grammar mistakes.

Overstatement in conclusions.
